Potential Research Questions ...

- What are the unique needs of caregivers from culturally-diverse backgrounds? What are some effective ways of addressing these needs via interventions and policies?
- What are the unique needs of caregivers for diverse diseases, disabilities, and populations? What are effective ways of addressing these needs via interventions and policies?
- What types of interventions foster lower levels of stress and burnout among caregivers? How might these be applied in the Alberta context (particularly rural areas)?
- How do we enhance the capacity of individuals to fulfill their caregiver role while balancing other life demands?

Potential Research Questions ...

- How do we proactively identify and address caregiver stress? What are the long-term impacts (cumulative impacts) of caregiving stress on health, mortality, finances, and family relationships?
- What are the long-term impacts of various caregiving interventions on the well-being, health, and mortality of caregivers? What are the best practices?
- Which financial and employment support approaches can enhance caregiver well-being?
- What is known about the positive impact of informal caregiving on those being cared for – in terms of longevity, quality of life, overall cost to health systems?
